Oil refining as a strategic choice for economic diversification and sustainable development in Algeria - Analytical study -

Abstract:
This research paper aims to illustrate the importance of the oil refining industry in Algeria as a strategic option to diversify the output of the Algerian oil industry, where the subsequent industry in Algeria can be used to produce refined petroleum products that provide other sources of funding in light of the decline in crude oil prices in world markets.

The study found a significant lack of investment in the refining industry in Algeria. at Statistics show that refineries operate at maximum production capacity and do not cover domestic market needs, and that the subsequent industry can be used to diversify the national economy and achieve sustainable development.

Keywords: diversification strategy, Oil refining, Algerian oil industry energies, sustainable development.
